

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE IN FEDERAL AGENCIES

Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

Hillary Brill is the Interim Executive Director of the Institute for Technology Law & Policy at Georgetown University Law Center. She is a nationally recognized technology policy advocate, practitioner, and educator. She has over twenty years of experience in technology and policy work including working as Head of Policy and Government Relations at PayPal & eBay, Legislative Counsel for Congressman Rick Boucher of the Judiciary and Energy & Commerce Committees, and Associate on communications and technology matters at Covington & Burling. She also founded a legislative advocacy and strategic planning practice that helps public interest organizations navigate technology policy issues. Her recent work includes launching educational initiatives for policymakers, eliminating barriers to internet access, combating misinformation on the Internet, and other social justice issues. Professor Brill currently teaches Copyright Law and Technology Policy Law courses at Georgetown University Law Center and writes on these topics. Professor Brill also recently served as Practitioner-in-Residence at Washington College of Law, at American University. Professor Brill received her B.A., magna cum laude, from Harvard University and her J.D., magna cum laude, from Georgetown Law.

Justice Mariano-Florentino Cuéllar is the Herman Phleger Visiting Professor of Law at Stanford Law School and a Justice of the Supreme Court of California. A Stanford faculty member since 2001 and a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Cuéllar is a scholar of public law, complex organizations, and political economy whose research explores problems in administrative law and legislation, cyberlaw and artificial intelligence, public health and safety, law and development, and international affairs. From 2009-2010, he served as Special Assistant to the President for Justice and Regulatory Policy. In this capacity, he led the White House Domestic Policy Council staff responsible for civil and criminal justice, public health law and policy, and immigration; negotiated bipartisan public health and criminal sentencing reform legislation; and worked to enact the bipartisan repeal of the military's Don't Ask/Don't Tell policy. He served on the ACUS Council from 2010-2015, and is a co-author of a report for ACUS, Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE IN FEDERAL AGENCIES

Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

David Freeman Engstrom is a Professor of Law, Associate Dean, and Bernard D. Bergreen Faculty Scholar at Stanford Law School. He is a nationally recognized expert in administrative law, civil procedure, and constitutional law. He is the co-author of a report for the Administrative Conference of the U.S., Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies. Beyond teaching and research, Engstrom has served as counsel or consultant to a wide range of public and private entities and is a frequent amicus before the U.S. Supreme Court. He is an elected member of the American Law Institute and a faculty affiliate at the Stanford Institute for Human-Centered Artificial Intelligence, CodeX: The Stanford Center for Legal Informatics, and the Regulation, Evaluation, and Governance Lab (RegLab). He holds a J.D. from Stanford Law School, an M.Sc. from Oxford University, and a Ph.D. from Yale University.

Daniel E. Ho is the William Benjamin Scott and Luna M. Scott Professor of Law, Professor of Political Science, Senior Fellow at the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research, and a Faculty Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University. He is also the Director of Stanford's Regulation, Evaluation, and Governance Lab (RegLab), which partners with government agencies to drive forward technology and data science in the administrative state, and Associate Director of Stanford's Institute for Human-Centered Artificial Intelligence. He is the co-author of a report for the Administrative Conference of the U.S., Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies. He holds a J.D. from Yale Law School and a Ph.D. from Harvard University.

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE IN FEDERAL AGENCIES

Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

Catherine M. Sharkey is the Crystal Eastman Professor of Law at NYU School of Law. She is one of the nation's leading authorities on the economic loss rule, punitive damages, and federal preemption. She has published more than fifty articles, essays, and book chapters in the fields of torts, business torts, products liability, administrative law, remedies, and class actions. Sharkey is co-author with Richard Epstein of Cases and Materials on Torts (12th edition, 2020) and co-editor with Saul Levmore of Foundations of Tort Law (2nd edition, 2009). She is an appointed public member of the Administrative Conference of the United States and a co-author of a report for the Administrative Conference of the U.S., Government by Algorithm: Artificial Intelligence in Federal Administrative Agencies. Professor Sharkey earned a B.A. in economics, summa cum laude, from Yale University, an M.Sc. in economics for development, with distinction, from Oxford University (Magdalen College) as a Rhodes Scholar, and a J.D. from Yale Law School.

Matthew Lee Wiener is the Vice Chairman and Executive Director of the Administrative Conference of the United States. Before affiliating with the Conference, he was general counsel to U.S. Senator Arlen Specter, counsel to the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary, a partner at Dechert LLP, and special counsel to Cuneo Gilbert & LaDuca. Mr. Wiener is an elected member of the American Law Institute, a fellow of the American Bar Foundation, a lecturer in law at the University of Pennsylvania Law School, and the co-chair of the Adjudication Committee of the American Bar Association's Section of Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice. He holds a J.D. from Stanford Law School, where he was articles editor of the Stanford Law Review, and an A.B. from William and Mary.